OF ITS ELECTRONIC BURPINGS, FAR FROM SMOOTHLY.

WE PULL BACK SLIGHTLY TO SHOW
GARRETT, A FEMALE SCIENTIST,
DRESSED IN STYLE OF THE YEAR
3000 AD DESPERATELY ADJUSTING
THE CONTROLS. SHE IS OBVIOUSLY IN A STATE OF PANIC.

WE PULL BACK FURTHER TO SHOW THAT THE PANIC IS MORE WIDE-SPREAD - TECHNICIANS MOVE
HURRIEDLY ABOUT, AN ELECTRONIC WARNING NOTE IS PULSING, AND A GENERAL ALARM IS BEING SPOKEN)

(AS THIS WARNING IS GENTLY BUT URGENTLY REPEATED, WE SEE THE OVERALL PICTURE OF THE ROOM, ACROSS WHICH STRIDES THE DETERMINED FIGURE OF LEADER CLENT.

ALTHOUGH THE COSTUMES AND THE ELECTRONIC EQUIPMENT ARE ULTRA MODERN, THE INTERIOR ARCHITECTURE IS ELEGANT AND GEORGIAN - THE GRANDIOSE RECEPTION HALL OF A STATELY HOME, PERFECTLY PRESERVED IN EVERY DETAIL - A STRANGE CONTRAST, ACCENTUATED BY THE COSTUMED PORTRAITS LOOKING DOWN FROM THE WALLS.

THE EQUIPMENT IS OBVIOUSLY NOT PART AND PARCEL OF THE BUILDING - THERE IS A CERTAIN ELEMENT OF MAKE-DO AND CONFUSION, AS THOUGH A SCIENTIFIC WORKSHOP HAD BEEN DUMPED INTO A STATELY BALLROOM.

AS IT TAKES OFF ITS GOGGLES WE SEE IT IS HUMAN. IT STUDIES THE ICE FACE, KEEN-EYED AGAINST THE WIND. THIS IS ARDEN.

THE AREA HE STANDS IN IS BOUNDED ALONG ONE SIDE BY A SUITABLY ADVANCED WINDBREAK)

ARDEN: (SHOUTING) Walters - drill here!

(TWO SIMILARLY DRESSED FIGURES COME TO HIM.

ONE, DAVIS, CARRIES A COMPACT PISTOL TYPE DRILL, AND A SMALL BLACK BOX - THE PORTABLE POWER PACK.

THE OTHER FIGURE IS WALTERS, SENIOR TO DAVIS, AND ARMED)

ARDEN: (INDICATING A SMOOTH PATCH ON THE ICE FACE) Clear that patch Walters, while I prepare the seismograph probes.

WALTERS: Sir. (TO DAVIS) Get your drill ready, Davis.

WALTERS: Base calling, sir.

ARDEN: (IRRITABLY) What do they want?

WALTERS: Nothing's coming through - receptions poor, I guess

ARDEN: They'll have to wait - this is more important!

WALTERS: What are we going to do, then, sir?

ARDEN: Excavate! This could be a brilliant discovery!

WALTERS: But sir - the computerised schedule - we must stick to that!

ARDEN: (DRILY) Must we?

WALTERS: (CAREFULLY) (BUT WITH A SUGGESTION OF A SMILE) Leader Clent will be furious sir

ARDEN: (GRINNING BOYISHLY) Damn Leader Clent, and the computer! For once, let's do something on our own account - eh?

WALTERS: (GRINNING) I don't see what Base can do about it sir, ... after all, we can't very well ask permission even, can we ARDEN: (GLEEFULLY) Come on, Davis - hurry man!

(AS HE AND WALTERS MOVE TO DAVIS TO HELP HIM SET UP THE HEAVIER DRILL, WE MOVE FORWARD TO A CLOSER VIEW OF THE CLEARED FACET OF ICE ...)

(Optional - this shot may be done live if possible)

Inside the ice, distorted but recognisable, is what appears to be a helmeted warrior. The helmet is hood-like and ominous, in the style of that used under the opening titles of "Hereward the Wake".

TELECINE C:

We are looking at a snow-bound landscape - model. In a large, flat area - which if clear, would be the gardens of the house - stands an enormous dome, vaguely visible, is the Georgian mansion, protected from the elements.

The dome is heavily packed about with snowdrifts. We hear the familiar sound of the TARDIS materialising, and we track in closer to one of the steeper drifts.

It materialises but "lands" awkwardly, and slithers down the slope of the drift, to finish up nearly horizontal.

We mix into a close shot of the full size TARDIS. the door is heaved open - upwards - and the Doctor's amazed head looks out, followed by JAMIE'S and VICTORIA'S.

FADE TK-3
(Keep running)

JAMIE: Ye're no flying a boat are ye, Doctor?

DOCTOR: It was a blind landing,
Jamie.
(MUSIC OUT)

JAMIE: Aye, that's for sure!

VICTORIA: There's no harm done - (GAYLY) and look at the snow!

JAMIE: Och not again - Tibet was bad enough - I think you've put us down further up the mountain.

The DOCTOR shakes his head - but his mind is on the problem. He gets out, and moves to the wall of the bubble, clear of snow at the edge of the drift.

The other two come to him, as he tests it.

VICTORIA: It looks like a great wall of ice ...(SHE TURNS TO JAMIE) Perhaps its the Snow Queen's Palace!

DOCTOR: Its not ice - its some kind of plastic

JAMIE: Aye? See how its smooth - and curved ...

DOCTOR: (THOUGHTFULLY) Its a dome - a protective dome.

VICTORIA: It must be huge! I can't see the end of it (EAGERLY)
I wonder what's inside?

JAMIE: There's no door -

The DOCTOR shushes them, and they make themselves look small, against the drift.

(MUSIC 7)

A little farther along the wall of the dome, a section slides open.

We cannot see beyond for this is an airlock.

Out of it step two incongruous figures, shaggy and wild-looking.

One - STORR - is muscular, athletic and moves with an hunter's confidence.

The other - PENLEY - is slightly bizarre in his movements, rather like a child pretending to play Indians - and accentuated mimicry of a hunted animal.

Both are dressed in many layers of tattered clothing and skins, and both are heavily bearded and unkempt.

They have obviously been up to no good, and carry several small parcels, filched from the Base stores.

PENLEY pauses as he drops a couple of packages in the snow. He quickly and avidly scoops them up, but this time slips them into make-shift capacious poacher's pockets lining his ragged cloak.

STORR: Hurry, man!

PENLEY: (CALMLY) Don't worry
- that alarm wasn't for us ...
(HE LOOKS BACK, THOUGHTFULLY)
I wonder what's wrong though?

STORR: (GRIMLY) That's their problem - come on!

STORR moves away swiftly and easily, with PENLEY following, floundering slightly.

After they have gone,
The DOCTOR moves to the air lock, now shut.

He looks at the others, who, like him, are intrigued.

DOCTOR: Shall we? (MUSIC 8)

They nod in agreement.
He finds the opening control. The DOOR slides open, and they enter, the door closing smoothly after them.

From the inside of the curved wall, we watch the inner door of the airlock open, and the DOCTOR and HIS FRIENDS
step out.

They pause, amazed and delighted at what they see.

We cut to their viewpoint.

Before them, under the even light of the enormous dome, which is out of sight, implied, stands a complete and
elegant Georgian mansion, untouched by the snow ...

WALTERS: He's huge ...!

ARDEN: A giant among prehistoric men ...

WALTERS: Is it a kind of armour, he's got on ...?

ARDEN: Yes - that's rather strange. He looks pre-Viking ... but no such civilization existed in prehistoric times before the First Ice Age....

WALTERS: Proper Ice Warrior isn't he, sir?

ARDEN: (THOUGHTFULLY) Yes ...even from here, you can see how cruel and frightening he seems

(CUT TO CU OF VARGA'S HEAD - T/C IF NECESSARY)

WALTERS: I reckon Leader Clent'll take a second look, won't he, sir?

ARDEN: (Yes ... (GRINS) And what'll the mighty computer make of it eh?

WALTERS: Sir - hadn't we better go back? While the weather still holds?

ARDEN: Good point Walters. Davis - try to bring the airsled closer will you ...?

(DAVIS NODS, AND MOVES TO PASS THE WINDBREAK, ONTO THE GLACIER ITSELF,
ALONG A RELATIVELY NARROW PATH CUT INTO THE ICE ...)

(A LITTLE WAY AWAY, BEHIND
AN OUTCROP OF ICE, PENLEY AND STORR CROUCH, WATCHING...)

STORR: What're they up to?

PENLEY: Arden must've found something in the ice ...something to take home to Clent. It won't be appreciated.

STORR: They ought to leave well alone

PENLEY: Arden was always a searcher ..wanted to be an archaeologist when I knew him ...

STORR: Archaeology! What good's that?

PENLEY: Its good to know things - even when they're dead.

STORR: Nothings sacred to you, is it

PENLEY: I only ask questions. Its in my character, I suppose STORRR: You swore you'd give all that up.

PENLEY: Discovery is as exciting to me, as the hunt is to you and with as much purpose. But with Clent he uses scientists' craniums as stepping stones for his ambition.....!

STORRR: That's about all you lot are fit for - doorsteps!

PENLEY: (MILDLY) Oh ...we're not totally useless, surely ...

STORR: To me you are. Come on - we've got to move. Leave them to their stupid games!

We now see PENLEY follow STORR across the snow, hiding from view of DAVIS, who is on the path above, returning to Arden.

STORR waits by the side of a small crevasse, ready to dash across when DAVIS is out of sight. PENLEY waits for his return.

DAVIS, up on the ridge, is suddenly aware of a vague rumbling

(ARDEN AND WALTERS ARE AWARE OF THE APPROACHING
THUNDEROUS NOISE)

WALTERS: (ALARMED) Sir - avalanche!

ARDEN: Where's Davis?

WALTERS: He'll have to take his chance sir - get your head down!

(AS THEY THROW THEMSELVES
TO THE GROUND, THE THUNDEROUS SOUND GROWS INCREASINGLY LOUDER AND NEARER)

On the ridge, DAVIS looks up, alarmed - but has no chance of escape.

Below PENLEY, sheltered, calls to STORR.

PENLEY: Storr - take cover!
Avalanche!

DAVIS is swept aside and down by the onslaught of snow.

STORR barely reaches cover, when he too, is struck down.

PENLEY waits, alarmed.

All is quiet. PENLEY moves to where STORR lies, very still.

(MUSIC 11)

STORR: (COMING ROUND) Penley!

PENLEY: Here. Did it get you?

STORR: My arm ... its gone, I think.

PENLEY: Broken..

STORR: Feels like it.

PENLEY: (SWIFTLY EXAMINING DAVIS WHO IS VERY STILL) You're lucky
.... there's one who's staying on the mountain for good

(ON TO PAGE 30)

STORR: They'll come looking for him - we'd best move out of it.

(AS PENLEY TRAPS HIS ARM AGAINST HIS BODY)

STORR: Unless you fancy trying to turn me over to your friends..... ?

PENLEY: Six months ago they were my friends not now. Can you walk.....?

STORR: Just make sure you can keep up come on!

With a last glance at Davis, Penley follows Storr away from the crevasse.

(MUSIC OUT)

(ARDEN AND WALTERS ARE GETTING TO THEIR FEET)

WALTERS: All clear, sir.

ARDEN: Yes - but how about Davis?

WALTERS: I'll go look for him.

ARDEN: Let's hope he's safe..... with another man gone, Clent will skin me alive!

WALTERS: Accidents will happen, sir. (GRINNING) And anyway - if he gets too awkward, you can always set your warrior on to him, eh.....?

As they start to look for Davis, we track in on Varga's ominous head ...

Ionisation. Severe drop in the Ionisation.

(THE CLOCK PINGS. THE VIDEO CHAIR STOPS)

JAMIE: Is he right?

CLENT: (THOUGHTFULLY) Yes ... he is.

VICTORIA: I still don't understand.

DOCTOR: Carbon dioxide content of the earth's atmosphere helps to retain the sun's heat - take the gas away, and the planet loses its heat too quickly - result - a rapid freeze up.

- JAMIE: But where did the gas go to?
- CLENT: Our civilisation is highly efficient, thanks to the direction of the Great World Computer. We conquered the problem of world famine a century ago, by artificial foods. On the land that was once used to grow the food we needed, we built up to date living units to house the increasing population.
- DOCTOR: Up to date?
- CLENT: There were exceptions of course, this house was classified as being of historical importance. The amount of growing plants on the planet was reduced to the absolute minimum.../

- (A PAUSE WHILE THIS IMAGE SINKS IN)/ (PAUSE)
- CLENT: But even then, it wasn't understood ... not until the ice caps began to advance ...
- JAMIE: What's this Ioniser, then?
- GARRETT: Ionisation is a method of intensifying the sun's heat onto the earth, but into particular areas./
- DOCTOR: Rather like a magnifying glass, Jamie ...
- JAMIE: Oh aye
- VICTORIA: And you can really melt glaciers and change the weather?
- CLENT: When certain difficulties are overcome.
